Synopsis Books:

Theyâ€™re trying to take me. Help! Help me, please. Daphne Mayfield sought a moment of quiet in a parkâ€”a break from city life, a tense relationship, and chronic overworkâ€”but then an elderly woman makes a desperate plea. Daphne is reluctant to get involved when sheâ€™s not sure whatâ€™s happening, but she wants to help the stranger. Is the rambling old lady the victim of a crime or a victim of dementia? As her unease grows, Daphne canâ€™t let go of the encounter. No matter what her boyfriend or her friends say. No matter what the retired homicide detective warns. Though she knows sheâ€™s meddling in other peopleâ€™s lives, her instincts scream that the danger is real. With each increasingly bold intervention, Daphne involves herself in someone elseâ€™s crisis until sheâ€™s in too deep to turn back. Sheâ€™s not just fighting for a strangerâ€™s lifeâ€”sheâ€™s fighting for her own.
